ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

In order to have this dissertation done, I myself really do owe the debts of an ocean of the beloved here and there, including all my advisors, professors, office staff, librarians, classmates and close friends in Naresuan University (NU), Thailand, the rector board, administrators, teachers and students in Can Tho University (CTU), Vietnam, and last but not least all the members of my family in Vietnam.

First and foremost, I would like to send my sincere thanks to my main advisor- Assistant Professor Dr. Sombat Noparak, who both brought me to this program and spent his time and energy giving me core ideas and good advice to my successful dissertation. Second, my great thanks should go to Assistant Professor Dr. Chantana Chanbanchong, who gave me strong motives to pursue this program through endless contacts when I was still in Vietnam via emails and timeless energy offering me useful ideas and several research techniques. Third, I would like to offer my profound thanks to Assistant Professor Dr. Talerngsok Sometip, my companion through my study, has given great advice about the plentiful sources. Fourth, my thanks should go to Associate Professor Dr. Wittaya Jansila; Associate Professor Dr. Nipon Kinawong; Associate Professor Dr. Samran Mejang; Associate Professor Dr. Rattana Bausonte; Assistant Professor Dr. Komkit Jumpasit, Associate Professor Dr. Panuwat Pakdeewong; Dr. Manit Chaikit, and Dr. Anucha Kampuang in Faculty of Education, NU, Thailand, who have brought me with great advice, encouragements, energy and statistical issues.

Fifth, all my great thanks would come to office staff, secretaries, librarians and the doctoral classmates of Educational Administration, Research and Evaluation, Educational Technology, Human Resources Development and Curriculum and Instructions of the school year of 2007 for their great help with advice, learning materials, encouragements and personal dialogues, and get-togethers.

Sixth, here I would greatly like to express my sincere thanks toward the Rector board of CTU, administrators, teachers and students in all schools/ colleges, institutes/centers, departments/offices, who have created more favorable conditions in terms of paperwork, questionnaire filling through the website, interviews and personal experiences for me to pursue and complete this program. Especially, my high appreciation and deep thanks would wrap to all the ICT staff in College of Information and Communication Technologies, CTU, Vietnam for helping with a website and raw data statistics. Seventh, I greatly have debts from my colleagues of the English Department, School of Education, and Department of Foreign Languages, School of Social Sciences & Humanities, CTU, Vietnam for their encouragements and taking over my heavy work in the office and classes for my doctoral program.

Eighth, my research could not have been finished if it had not got useful guidance and in-depth knowledge from advisory members elsewhere in the world, namely Professor Dr. Charles F. Webbers, Faculty of Education, University of Calgary, Canada; Professor Dr. Kerry J. Kennedy, Faculty of Education Sciences, the Hong Kong Institute of Education; Professor Dr. Jan M. Robertson, School of Education, University of Waikato, New Zealand; Professor Dr. Gary Glen Price, Department of Curriculum & Instruction, University of Wisconsin-Madison, U.S.A; Dr. Lisa Wyatt Knowlton and Dr. Cynthia C. Phillips, authors of the Logic Model Guidebook and owners of Phillips Wyatt Knowlton Inc., U.S.A; Aggregate Professor Pablo Campos, University CE-San Pable, Spain, an international evaluator ; Associate Professor Dr. Panuwat Pakdeewong and Dr. Anucha Kampaung, Faculty of Education, NU, Thailand and Dr. Trinh Quoc Lap, Vice Dean, School of Education, and Dr. Nguyen Lam Dien, Senior lecturer, School of Education, and Dr. Tran Thanh Be, Director of Mekong Delta Development Research Institute, Can Tho University, Vietnam for their kind help with valuable perspectives and research techniques. And the questionnaires were not done without the double-checking in terms of correct English grammar, cohesion, and appropriateness towards the understandings for both native and non-native English speakers by Mr. Don Hindle (Canada), Head of English Language Program, Faculty of Science, and Mr. Aaron Larsen (Australia), Lecturer in English, Naresuan University International College (NUIC), NU, Thailand, and Dr. Nguyen Lam Dien and Dr. Trinh Quoc Lap, CTU, Vietnam for their kind help with checking Vietnamese writing styles and linguistic issues, too.

Last but not least, I would say that my endless thanks would go to all the members of my family for their long sufferings from my absence from home and their efforts to give me encouragements and sufficient budgets covering all my study expenses.

And all my great thanks would fly to those who have helped me silently and their names are always still in my heart and on my mind.

All the best wishes to all people listed here and there.

Thai Cong Dan
